How river is now higher than at any time base the disastrous flood of 1854. The wind is blowing a fearful gale. The waves are from 10 to 20 feet high. Much damage has been done to wharves, boats, and other floating properties. Nine small house-boats were sunk to-day, and last night the occupants in some cases barely escaped with their lives. In one case a man carried a sick wife cut in his arms. The towns adjacent to Huntington not so highly located are suffering very much. Horses have been unset and swept away at Credo, involving a loss of hundreds of dollars. If the river continues to rise much longer Huntington will also be in danger.

Death of an Almsbouse Cook.

Coroner Taylor was called early yesterday morning to Second and Federal streets to view the body of James Robinson, a cook at the colored almsbouse, who was found dead in the street. The Coroner discovered a slight cut over the temple, but it was supposed to have been caused by his fall. After heaving the testmony of several persons Dr. Taylor concluded that death resulted from natural causes, and the deceased was sent to the almshouse for burial. As is usual on metodrama nights there was a top-heavy house at the Theatre last night. The play was "Mester and Man"—not one, perchance, that will interest the critical, but one that will appeal to those who are so happily ingenuous as to be able to cry over the sufferings of inartistic, the last set.

There are some strong situations in "Master and Man," and the story is very simply told. It is a good, old-fashioned melodrama, full of alternating humor and pathos, and with as httle fume and fury as a melodramatic construction will admit of. The forge scene in the fourth act is a very good one. The company which played last night is very uneven, some of the people being very weak and others capable. Palmer Collins, an excellent actor, makes a good Humpy Logan.

"Master and Man" will be repeated to-night, to-morrow night, and at a matinee to-morrow afternoon. Their Complexion.
